

Purpose: This guide is geared towards helping teachers how to navigate the Personal Finance Lab built into AET

Step 1: Access Personal Finance Lab in AET

You can access the Personal Finance Lab from your AET Teacher PROFILE tab

Step 2: Personal Budgeting Game for AET Teachers and Students

- The Budget Game on PersonalFinanceLab.com allows your students to take the roll of college student, with a job, and living on their own
- It will challenge your students to manage their variable income along with their monthly expenses, while trying to build up their net worth, credit score, and social life
- It will take about 20 minutes for your students to go through one virtual month and it is recommended to play for 12 virtual months

AET Teachers save 20% per student, the normal price is $10 per student but AET users get 20% discount which makes it only $8 per student.

Use coupon code AET2020 at checkout to get your discount. This coupon code is valid until June 30 2020!

Step 3: How this translates to an SAE in AET

- You can grade your students on completing the Budget game
- Students can create a Foundational SAE under Financial Literacy to record the time and experiences they have through using this tool

We hope this new tool offered through AET allows all of your students to practice real-life financial management
